THE OUTER GARMENT SHOP
608 TO 614 ELEVENTH STREET

Distinctive Styles Moderate Prices

Our close connection with leading New York and Paris manufacturers enables us to show all the successful styles as fast as they appear—and at sensible prices based upon the enormous quantities purchased by our many stores.

This season we are especially fortunate in having large stocks of wanted fabrics that are scarce elsewhere—such as Bolivia, Plush, Silk Velour, Chiffon Velvet, etc.

Suit Department

Many exclusive models of Bolivia, Velvet, Velour, Glove Cloth, Broadcloth, Serge and Gabardine.

All the leading shades—black, navy, brown, mouse, green, burgundy and rubber gray.

Especially good values at

$25.00 $35.00 $55.00

Coat Department

The styles and materials are very snappy this season, the prettiest we have ever shown.

Coats for every purpose—sport, street, afternoon and formal occasions. The favored materials are Bolivia, Chiffon Velvet, Velour, Broadcloth, Plush, Gabardine and White Chin-chilla.

Especially good values at

$15.00 $25.00 $45.00

Fur Department

When buying furs you want to be absolutely sure that you don't pay too much and that you get the right quality.

We don't believe there is another store in Washington that sells dependable furs as reasonably as we do.

We carry a complete line of Fur Coats and Matched Sets in all fashionable pelts—and for equal quality of skins and workmanship we believe our prices to be 20% less than elsewhere.

Coats for as little as $75.00.
Sets for as little as $25.00.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Dinner Tonight for Out-of-Town
Guests Here for Boncompagni-Draper Wedding Tomorrow.

Hon. Mrs. O'Brien Sails for England—Entertaining for Capt. McLean and Mrs. Olive Gale Hill.

Mrs. William Franklin Draper, widow of Gen. Draper, former ambassador to Italy, will entertain the out-of-town guests who are here for the marriage tomorrow of Miss Draper and Prince Andrea Boncompagni-Ludovisi, at her home in K street. Mrs. George M. Davis of Louisville, Ky., sister of Mrs. Draper, and Mr. William King Richardson of Boston are the only members of the party who are house guests of Mrs. Draper. Many beautiful gifts have been sent to Miss Draper. The gift from her fiancé is an exquisite diadem of diamonds, which she will wear at the dinner this evening. The gifts from her parents, Prince and Princess Boncompagni-Ludovisi, include family jewels of great beauty, which will be presented to the bride upon her arrival in Italy, it being contrary to regulations established since the beginning of the war to send articles of value out of the country.

Blush roses and larkspur made a charming decoration for the dinner table at the home of Admiral and Mrs. Richardson last evening, when Miss Margaret Draper and Prince Boncompagni and their wedding party were entertained by Admiral and Mrs. Richardson. The guests included in addition to Miss Draper and Prince Boncompagni, Miss Edith Blair, Miss Minna Blair, Mrs. Sherman Miles, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cochran, Miss Eudora Clover, Miss Beatrice Clover, Mr. Giuseppe Brambilla of the Italian embassy, Mr. William King Richardson of Boston, Mr. Jules Blondel of the French embassy, Count Limpur of the Netherlands legation and Mr. Ralph Hill.

The Demand for Suits is Unparalleled.

A tribute alike to the trend of the season and a preference for the models and values we are displaying. Any comparison which you make must result in a decision for us—because in the wealth of our variety you will find styles that are supremely attractive, and at prices which mark them as superior qualities.

The important part which fur-trimming is playing in this season's designs is illustrated by its generous and tasteful embellishment of our productions—while, of course, there are others of effective styles without it.

We want to emphasize that the colors which are scarce and the weaves that are most in demand are plentiful here in all our grades up to $90. Velours, Bolivias, Broadcloths, Jerseys, Poiret Twills, etc.

We are featuring four grades—which are unusually strong in assortment and quality—at $39.50—$44.50—$49.50—$54.50.
